To assist students in deciding upon a career path, this course will offer an exploration of the numerous career opportunities available to Paul College students. This course will allow for students to truly measure their career interest through a variety of experiences. Students will have the opportunity to take numerous self-assessment tests in order to assist in focusing on their area of interest. Readings that will facilitate introspection will be required, as well as journaling to help track progress. On-line discussions will work towards preparing students for interviews, internships and general career readiness.
